Below the title are two purple navigation buttons: 'Using the stairs' with a right arrow and 'Getting around the house' with a down arrow. A text block reads: 'Finding the right equipment can make life easier for you. Select an option below to see similar items on our Products and Services page.' To the right is a 'In this section' box with a list: 1. Bedroom, 2. Living room, 3. Kitchen, 4. Outdoors, 5. Bathroom, 6. Around the house. The 'Grab rails' section features an icon of a metal handle and text: 'A permanent fixture to the structure of a property to offer support to a person if trying to adjust position or steady themselves. Most are attached to a wall and require a person to have sufficient arm strength and hand function to be able to hold it. It may require fixing in place therefore it is important to consider the strength of the wall and whether it is an internal or external wall.' The 'Ramp' section features an icon of a portable ramp and text: 'A portable sloping surface that may be used as an alternative to having to climb a couple of steps. Please be aware that the recommended gradient for a ramp is 1:12 therefore it is necessary to check that the ramp will not be too steep. Other considerations are the weight of the ramp and whether the person transporting it has sufficient strength and flexibility to be able to move and install it correctly.'

Ageing Better in Birmingham - Support to Tackle Loneliness and Isolation

Benita Wishart

A group of elderly men are seated around a table covered with a patterned tablecloth, playing cards. The man on the far left is wearing a dark jacket and a blue turban. The man next to him is wearing a light blue turban and a dark vest over a white shirt. The man on the far right is wearing a red turban and a blue and white striped sweater. The background shows a room with purple walls, a clock, and windows. A white speech bubble icon is visible in the upper right corner of the image.

Age Friendly Cities

Richard Doidge & Lorna Karimjee

Adapting Structures and Services to improve accessibility and inclusivity for older people

Background- Age Friendly Cities and Communities

- Is a concept developed in consultation with older adults by the World Health Organisation in 2006
- It's a response to an ageing global population and increasing urbanisation – and reflects many more people will be growing old in cities.
- A Global Network of Age Friendly Cities and Communities (GNFAA) now exists
 - 900+ Cities & Communities
 - 41 Countries 14 Network Affiliates- including the UK
 - 230 million people
 - 14 Network affiliates including the UK Age Friendly Network

What does an Age Friendly City Look Like?

Our environments play a key role in how we adjust to the ageing process and are a crucial impact on our physical and mental wellbeing.

An Age Friendly City is one where –

- People can live healthy, inclusive and active later lives
- Older adults are active participants and valued in society
- Environments, activities and services enable people to enjoy their lives independently and in good health
- Older people feel safe and secure in their homes and communities with access to all necessary health care and financial support

Impact of becoming 'Age-Friendly' On Birmingham?

The Centre for Ageing Better articulates the following impact of Age Friendly Status on a city: Age-friendly is built on the evidence of what supports healthy and active ageing in a place, allowing more people to live independent lives and contribute to their communities for longer. In addition, by committing to becoming age-friendly:

- Older residents are engaged in shaping the place that they live
- The potential for greater equity within the current older population is better understood
- Multi-agency and multi-level collaboration is strengthened, connecting the social and built environment across departments and reducing silo working

There are no definitive costs associated with implementing an age friendly action plan. Very often no new funding is required and age friendly activity can be about using existing resources better

As a city we must develop Age Friendly to deliver change both for citizens and for the 'system' that supports the needs of our city.

How do we become Age Friendly?

- The World Health Organisation in consultation with older people developed a framework that is supported by evidence of healthy ageing
- The framework is based on eight interconnected domains that typify urban life
- The domains reflect both the physical and social environment, they intersect and interact with one another
- The quality of each of these domains and how we interact with them can influence our independence, health and wellbeing

Social Environment

Birmingham's Journey to becoming Age Friendly

- For the past 18 months we have been working towards our long-term commitment to become Age Friendly which has involved developing a baseline profile of Birmingham's activity across directorates and external organisations
- Through the course of our research we have evidenced many of positive examples of citywide, pan-organisation, age friendly activity
- Our ability to evidence this, has meant we have achieved the first milestone on our journey by successfully joining the UK Network of Age Friendly Communities in December 2019 (One of 14 affiliates of the global network)
- We are now working with BVSC and the Age of Experience citizen group to establish what features of an Age Friendly City should be a priority in Birmingham.
- Ageing Better in Birmingham's coproduction group members have actively supported the work around Age-friendly already, helping us steer the conversation around what matters for people over 50 across the city.

Birmingham's Journey to becoming Age Friendly

- We met with the BVSC Age of Experience Group in January 2021 to develop an understanding of the barriers, needs and preferences of older adults in Birmingham
- We were able to identify that social isolation has played a considerable part during the COVID-19 pandemic as older adults have felt the greatest impact of successive lockdowns
- There was a general consensus that the restrictions had led to feelings of loneliness and they are keen to re-establish local connections even at a basic level of meeting for a coffee at a café
- There were some positives that older people felt more visible and respected in their community as a result of the pandemic
- An Age-friendly City survey is currently out for consultation since the end of last week. We've so far had over 130 responses from residents from all over the city. At a glance, residents are well represented through different older age groups

Social Isolation in Birmingham

- Nearly 57,000 (37%) of people aged 65+ live alone in Birmingham
- This increases to 81,000 (53%) of this age group when we add those with life limiting illnesses- these figures are higher than England and Regional averages
- Living alone increases our risk of becoming lonely and socially isolated
- COVID 19 pandemic and subsequent restrictions have heavily impacted on older adults living alone
- Social distancing has exposed inequalities of digital access and those disproportionately facing digital exclusion are older people who have been shielding for the longest periods therefore exacerbating feelings of isolation.
- Therefore is key that Age Friendly activity such as BVSC's Ready to Connect campaign supports people to feel confident about reconnecting with their communities

Future Actions

- Develop a shared vision, to determine the priorities for action and to plan and resource how Birmingham will achieve its age-friendly outcomes
- Map and engage with stakeholders
- Establish corporate leadership buy-in as the scope of the age friendly programme is much wider than Adult Social Care
- Obtain written commitment of political support
- Apply for Age Friendly Status
- Develop delivery approach based on Age Friendly Vision and Plan, including evaluation of progress – an age-friendly action plan is at the heart of creating an age-friendly city

Why Do Carers Become Lonely and Isolated?

Caring responsibilities often restricts social contact, leading to loneliness

By putting the person they care for first, some Carers no longer have the time to see other friends and family

People often assume a carer is not lonely if they live with the person they care for

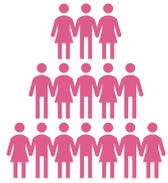

Some aspects of caring can be very difficult to share with others – dignity, stigma

Talking about the challenges of caring or accepting support can make some carers feel like they have failed or guilty

Financial difficulties. Socialising is often the first thing that carers cut back on

“The biggest thing is not being able to afford or have the time to go out. Also, the inability to relax and not worry about having to go home early because my husband needs me. It's hard to enjoy social activities when you are tired and stressed and unable to 'switch off' from caring. You miss activities and eventually people stop asking.”*

“As a Carer, support via zoom is one of the positives to come out of all of this. Being able to drop in for an hour is a perfect option for me”

Adult Social Care

Citywide Adults Safeguarding Team –
Loneliness & Social Isolation

Danielle Parker

Care Act s42 Safeguarding example

- Loneliness and social isolation are key factors.
- E.g. woman in her 20s – isolated – experiencing mental ill-health- partner used the isolation & increased this through domestic abuse/coercive control.
- E.g. woman in her 60s vulnerable due to her mental health seeking friendship & support from a neighbour but financial abused.

Mr X's story

- Man in his 40s with care and support needs in relation to his Learning Disability.
- Use of social media & chat rooms to find friendship/have contact due to loneliness & social isolation.
- Chatting led to meeting up but the woman wasn't who she said she was & had a man with her.

- X had money stolen from his flat after bringing the woman & a man back to his flat.
- They then returned & forced him to withdraw money from a cashpoint under threat of physical violence.
- X felt too scared to remain at his flat & went to live temporarily with family.

- X was supported to look at alternative housing options to better meet his support needs.
- Supported accommodation was found in to meet X's housing needs and reduce his social isolation and protect from future risks of financial, psychological and physical abuse.
- Partnership working with housing, police, adult social care & support agencies to empower X.

- Mission Statement:
“To promote the well being of older people across Birmingham and Sandwell.”
- Accurate high quality Information & Advice
- Activities to reduce loneliness & isolation
- Services to maintain independence at home

Gradual loss of Social Connections

The Pandemic

- Most of the country turned to technology to stay connected – Zoom and WhatsApp
- Survey of 150 people aged 70 and over – only 5% were digitally active
- More vulnerable to exploitation –
“give me your bank card and I will go do your shopping for you”
- Telephone befriending and teleconference activities

Trusting a tradesman

- 75 year old gentleman who lived alone and owned his own house
- Cold called by a roofer who had seen a loose tile
- Took over £15,000 over a 6 month period
- A concerned neighbour brought Paul in after he complained to her
- Reported to police and Trading Standards
“I can't believe I've been so foolish”

Relaxation of Restrictions

- Rebuilding social connections:
 - Social engagement – friendship groups
 - Physical activity – walking groups, exercise
 - Interest-based activities – book clubs, IT clubs

Creating safe spaces for meaningful social connections protects vulnerable older people from abuse

Loneliness & Isolation A Preventative Approach

Elizabeth Shepherd & Paul Moore

LONELINESS & ISOLATION
A PREVENTATIVE APPROACH

May 2021

Who are the Active Wellbeing Society?

Our vision: Healthy, happy people living active and connected lives

- A mutual, member-led cooperative
- Ethos based on removing barriers to participation
- Run free activity programmes - learn to ride, group exercise, walking, running, growing, art/craft
- Food poverty support - food parcels/distribution, community cafes, cooking skills
- Community support and engagement - active streets, community conversations
- Social prescribing link workers
- Listen & Connect telephone support service
- Deliver a programme of virtual activity support (over 1k sessions during Covid).

A TIME FOR CHANGE

In March 2020 with the first Covid Lockdown imminent we started having conversations about how we could support individuals and communities through these difficult times. We moved quickly to develop alternative models that encompassed practical and emotional support.

During the Covid-19 pandemic #BrumTogether has been the city's coalition of voluntary, community and faith groups. The network included more than 80 partner organisations working together to provide those most in need with essential support and services. This has involved coordinating and delivering food parcels, hot meals, hygiene products, clothing, baby supplies and children's activity packs to families.

The Active Wellbeing Society have also delivered a telephone support service, virtual wellbeing activities and sharing positive stories of people coming together to support each other.

LISTEN & CONNECT

Our Vision

- To promote good mental health, physical wellbeing, and a sense of community belonging; through meaningful conversation and connecting people with local resources and opportunities that will support them to lead the lives they want to live.

Our Mission

- The service provides 12 weeks of person centred support and seeks to offer a preventative strengths-based community response to loneliness, isolation, increasing levels of anxiety, depression, health inequalities and inactivity.
- The combination of listening, tangible solutions and working in collaboration with other agencies means we can work to create a stable space for people to consider exploring wider community connections.
- Taking a serious approach to a person's meaningful use of time can mean a huge difference to their self-esteem, well-being and confidence
- We recognise the complexity of people's lives, the multiple barriers to participation and meeting them where they are at.
- Creating opportunities but realising the impact COVID restrictions has had upon behaviour. The pathway into activity can often require support and confidence building not just referral into a social group or physical activity.
